----------------	--

It’s been four years since that day the epidemic became a pandemic and the lives of office workers and their families (even pets!) changed dramatically. While our essential workers maintained the at work paradigm, many of us set up home offices and routines. We made banana bread, juggled toddlers during zoom calls, all while learning a lot about how we work and ourselves during this time period. The question is - has it changed the way we work forever? Some businesses call for going back to the good old days... while hybrid work and remote work are now part of our professional fabric and vocabulary. Is there a middle ground where we can leverage what we learned and keep the best of our pre-COVID work lives?

CLOSING SESSION – MERIDIAN BALLROOM (1 PDU-Power Skills)

3:10-3:50 PM      Closing Presentation - Project Management & the CEO
Rich Ledbetter, CEO, Guarantee Electrical

Rich Ledbetter is the CEO of Guarantee Electrical Company, one of the nation’s largest electrical construction companies, based in Saint Louis and working across the United States. Guarantee’s 122-year history began with the legendary “guarantee” to complete the World’s Fair in 1904 when electricity was launched to the world. Today Guarantee is an employee-owned leader in the rapidly evolving world of power and electrical system design & construction.

Ledbetter’s passion is Culture, Leadership & Strategy by “the team” and the intrinsic leadership that’s available to everyone in the 1000-human organization. Ledbetter will share experiences, and offer perspective from his seat as the CEO about the fundamentals of project management and alignment across organizations.
