Office Hours: Wednesdays 8:30 am – 9:30 am

Welcome

Welcome to the beginning of your journey in graduate study and the profession of school psychology. I am honored to be part of your first course and to help introduce you to a field dedicated to improving the academic, social, emotional, and behavioral success of children and adolescents.

Graduate school is different from undergraduate education. You will be challenged to think critically, integrate research with practice, communicate professionally, and continually reflect on your own development. While this journey will require dedication and perseverance, it is also incredibly rewarding. Every concept you learn and every skill you develop will prepare you to make meaningful differences in the lives of students, families, educators, and communities.

This course is designed to provide a strong foundation for the remainder of your graduate program. My hope is that you leave this class not only with new knowledge, but also with increased confidence, curiosity, and a deeper appreciation for the important role school psychologists play in supporting learning and well-being.

I encourage you to ask questions, engage thoughtfully with your classmates, and embrace the learning process. I look forward to getting to know each of you and supporting you as you begin this exciting professional journey.

Bio

I was born and raised in Central Illinois. I earned my undergraduate degree in Psychology from Northern Illinois University. I also earned my Specialist in School Psychology from NIU. I worked as a School Psychologist in Illinois for 12 years. I currently facilitate in-person and on-line psychology courses.

Teaching Philosophy

I believe learning is an active process. My role is not simply to present information but to create meaningful opportunities for students to analyze, question, discuss, and apply what they are learning. Graduate education should challenge students to think deeply, evaluate evidence critically, and develop the professional judgment necessary for effective practice.

My classroom is founded on four core principles:

- Respect: Every student deserves to be heard, valued, and supported.
- Engagement: Learning is most meaningful when students actively participate and connect course concepts to authentic situations.

- Critical Thinking: School psychologists make decisions that affect children's lives. Developing the ability to evaluate evidence, consider multiple perspectives, and make ethical, data-informed decisions is essential.
- Growth: Mistakes are part of learning. I encourage intellectual curiosity, thoughtful risk-taking, reflection, and continuous improvement.

I strive to foster an environment that is welcoming, collaborative, and academically rigorous. While I maintain high expectations, I am equally committed to providing guidance, constructive feedback, and support throughout your learning journey.

My ultimate goal is not only for students to succeed in this course, but to develop into knowledgeable, reflective, ethical, and compassionate school psychologists who are prepared to advocate for children, families, and schools.

About the Course

Course description

This course is designed as an introduction to the laws, ethical guidelines, and professional issues that shape applied psychological work with children and adolescents. Because schools are an important context in which most children learn and develop, all professionals who seek to work with children and adolescents need to be familiar with the unique challenges, opportunities, and constraints that derive from providing psychological services within schools. Course content will cover the emergence of the profession of school psychology, its transition over time, continuing issues in school psychology role change, legal and ethical concepts of importance to the field, and the development of individual identity as an ethical psychologist who is committed to children's best interest. Class time will be spent on lectures and presentations; student-led discussion will be heavily emphasized. Both formal assignments and discussions are designed to encourage and increase student participation. Conducting a critical analysis of each reading and providing substantive contributions to class discussions are necessary to succeed in this course.

Course goals and objectives

In this course, there are four primary goals for students' learning, such that students will have strengthened their skills in each of these areas by the end of the semester. The course schedule is designed to allow for exploration of each of these skill sets across multiple topics, so that students are simultaneously developing their competency in each area throughout the semester.

Goal One: Students will become oriented to the professional practice of psychology with children and adolescents. Goal Two: Students will understand the ethical principles that are of importance to the field, especially their responsibility to monitor and further their own development throughout their careers.

Goal Three: Students will know the major tenets of federal laws affecting the practice of psychology with children and adolescents, and how to find and apply state law and local policy to their work.

Goal Four: Students will be familiar with the challenges involved in the professional practice of school psychology. These challenges include the responsibility of monitoring and advocating for social justice in the school and community environments in which children learn and develop.

NASP Standards for Graduate Preparation of School Psychologists (2020) Addressed Standard 2, Domain 5

School psychologists understand systems structures, organization, and theory; general and special education programming; implementation science; and evidence-based, school-wide practices that promote learning, positive behavior, and mental health. School psychologists, in collaboration with others, develop and implement practices and strategies to create and maintain safe, effective, and supportive learning environments for students and school staff.

Standard 2, Domain 8

School psychologists have knowledge of individual differences, abilities, disabilities, and other diverse characteristics and the impact they have on development and learning. They also understand principles and research related to diversity in children, families, schools, and communities, including factors related to child development, religion, culture and cultural identity, race, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, socioeconomic status, and other variables. School psychologists implement evidence-based strategies to enhance services in both general and special education and address potential influences related to diversity. School psychologists demonstrate skills to provide professional services that promote effective functioning for individuals, families, and schools with diverse characteristics, cultures, and backgrounds through an ecological lens across multiple contexts. School psychologists recognize that equitable practices for diverse student populations, respect for diversity in development and learning, and advocacy for social justice are foundational to effective service delivery. While equality ensures that all children have the same access to general and special educational opportunities, equity ensures that each student receives what they need to benefit from these opportunities.

Standard 2, Domain 10

School psychologists have knowledge of the history and foundations of school psychology, multiple service models and methods; ethical, legal, and professional standards; and other factors related to professional identity and effective practice as school psychologists. School psychologists provide service consistent with ethical, legal, and professional standards; engage in responsive ethical and professional decision-making; collaborate with other professionals; and apply professional work characteristics needed for effective practice as school psychologists, including effective interpersonal skills, responsibility, adaptability, initiative, dependability, technological competence, advocacy skills, respect for human diversity, and a commitment to social justice and equity.

Course Requirements and Policies

Course activities/assessments Notes activities

At the beginning of most classes, I'll ask you to fill out a short, handwritten activity about the readings for that week. The prompts/questions will often be about aspects of the readings that I previously prompted you to pay attention to. Often, I'm going to be interested in what really interests or intrigues you about a topic or reading, and what questions you still have. These will be used in class to generate discussion, and turned in either at the class break or the end of the class, for completion credit. You can come to class with notes and/or with your readings highlighted/written on to assist you in completing this activity, but the best thing that you can do to help you prepare for class is to read carefully.

Law and ethics quizzes

Students will take two online quizzes covering essential information from the Ethics & Law textbook. Each quiz will be open on Blackboard for one week, beginning at the end of class one week and finishing at the beginning of class the next. Students are welcome and encouraged to use their notes and their book while completing these quizzes.

Ethical problem-solving worksheet and paper

Students will receive a scenario describing an ethical challenge in class, and they will complete a draft version of the NASP Ethical Problem-Solving Worksheet (available on BB) and turn it in to the instructor. The instructor will provide feedback, and, using the worksheet and feedback, students will develop a 6 – 8 page, double spaced paper elaborating on each section of the problem-solving worksheet and considerations relevant to that section. The paper should end with a 1 – 2 page discussion of how the ethical principles, legal considerations, and steps taken to develop a response to the ethical dilemma relate to class materials and discussions on social justice and cultural responsiveness. Citations of course materials and other relevant sources should be included throughout, and APA formatting should be used in all citations and on the references page. When students submit their paper, they will receive a rubric, and will evaluate their work using the rubric.

Self-care assignment

Following an in-class discussion of the importance of self-care and strategies for doing so, students will complete a self-care assignment over the course of several weeks. The assignment will involve targeting one area for self-care and tracking progress toward improvement in that area over time. Upon submitting their self-care assignment, students will be prompted to reflect on how engaging in self-care can support their well-being and efficacy as mental health professionals.

Next challenges presentation

At the end of the semester, students will present to the class about one topic discussed during the semester that is of particular interest to them. Students should coordinate these topics with the instructor approximately two weeks before the final presentation day. The presentation will include an overview of the topic, what makes it interesting to the presenter, remaining issues/questions in need of further research and/or practice advancements, and how the student plans to learn more about the assigned topic as they begin their careers. Presentations should be no more than 10 minutes, to allow a few minutes for questions and discussion.

Class participation

High-quality discussion of course readings is essential to ensuring mastery of the material covered in this course. Each class, students are expected to identify at least one point from each of the day's readings to raise during in-class discussion, in addition to any instructor-prompted contributions. Preparation of more than one topic is encouraged, in case a peer selects a similar/overlapping discussion point. Participation will be graded on the following scale.

Participation Rubric

5 points	The student attended class but did not participate in discussion more than six times during the semester. Discussion of self-assigned key points during each class was cursory.
10 points	The student participated during less than half of class meetings during the semester. Discussion of self-assigned key points during each class was cursory.
15 points	The student participated approximately once per class. Or The student's participation was consistently lacking in quality. Or The student dominated classroom discussion such that peers were sometimes denied the opportunity to participate. Discussion of self-assigned key points during each class also met one of the previous qualifiers.
20 points	The student consistently offered comments or questions that indicated comprehension of assigned readings. Discussion of self-assigned key points during each class indicated understanding of the issue and/or careful consideration of conflicting/confusing evidence.
25 points	The student contributed insightful and novel comments and questions during most classes, and participated in class, without dominating the conversation, during all meetings. Discussion of self-assigned key points during each class indicated insightful and critical understanding of the issue and any contradictory evidence.

Submitting work

Most assignments can be submitted via Blackboard. If an assignment does not have a submission portal via Blackboard, it can be submitted via email or in print to the instructor.

Instructor, Departmental, and University Policies

Instructor Policies Online materials

Some program materials, such as the Program Manual and the Practicum Guidance Document, are available via the SIUE CCS Teams page. Please familiarize yourself with Teams and check the page regularly for updates.

Communication

All students must have an SIUE email address to participate fully in this course, as email will be used to communicate information regarding seminar meetings, readings, meetings with you and your supervisors, and timelines for conducting end of semester evaluations.

Academic Engagement

Being engaged in this course includes checking Blackboard and Teams regularly and being prepared to discuss class materials. During group discussions, you are expected to listen attentively to peers, attempt to understand their points before sharing your own, and respect the human dignity of your peers. Dissent is welcome, but it is not acceptable to introduce or defend points that dehumanize your peers. Shared humanity recognizes equal access to well-being, liberty, and opportunity/property; therefore, arguments that individuals within one socially constructed group have greater entitlement to well-being, liberty, or opportunity/property than others, on the sole basis of membership in that group, are not allowed, and will result in removal from the discussion. As a point of reference, if you are forcing one or more peers to “prove” that they are equally entitled to your basic rights, then you are dehumanizing them, and such behavior is not tolerated in this course.

Students Needing Accommodations

I have endeavored to create a syllabus, Blackboard resources, and classroom environment that are accessible to learners using assistive devices and other learners with disabilities. If you are a learner with a disability and come across a resource, assignment, or task that is not accessible, please let me know of it as soon as possible so that I can take steps to correct it and/or find a more suitable replacement. I also welcome and encourage collaboration early in the semester, so that we can ensure fair and accessible participation in course activities.

APA Format in Written Work

Students are expected to be familiar and/or to familiarize themselves with APA standards for citations and references, per the 7th edition of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. Please ensure that you have access to this text at any time that you may need it during the semester.

A lack of knowledge of appropriate citation and referencing format will not excuse you from point deductions from written assignments or disciplinary action in the case of plagiarism.**

If you would like additional instruction in the use of APA format, please arrange to speak with me, or seek out the resources described below.

Students who require additional assistance in writing in the areas of grammar and/or organization are strongly encouraged to seek out additional assistance from outside sources to assist in improving their ability to revise their written work. University-based services for assisting students with professional writing include the Writing Center (<http://www.siue.edu/IS/WRITING/index.html>), which also provides workshops in APA style.

Department Policies: The Psychology Department's Policy on Withdrawals and Incompletes

All withdrawals must be completed by the end of the 13th week of classes during fall and spring, and by a similarly late date (i.e., before 82% of class meetings have occurred) in any summer term. Grades that apply to students who initiate a withdrawal and grades that apply when a student fails to officially withdraw within established deadlines are determined by university policy (see <http://www.siue.edu/policies/1j1.shtml>). The granting of a grade of I (Incomplete) is not automatic. It is available only in cases when a student has completed most of the work required for a class but is prevented by a medical or similar emergency from completing a small portion of the coursework before the deadline for grade submission. An I must be approved by the instructor with appropriate documentation provided by the student. If an instructor agrees to give a student an I, the instructor will fill out a Memorandum of Incomplete Grade to be kept with the student's records. If the work is not completed by the time specified on the Memorandum, the student's grade will be changed from an I to F.

The Psychology Department's Writing Policy

As a student in this course, you will be expected to display graduate-level writing, which includes completing course assignments that meet the following basic writing criteria. Specifically, all written assignments completed for this course should include:

- clear transitions from sentence to sentence and idea to idea (e.g., paper is organized/flows well);
- verb tense consistency;
- clear and unambiguous sentences and ideas;
- writing that is free of typos, spelling errors, and major grammatical errors;
- properly formatted citations and references, per the 7th edition of the APA manual.

This is by no means an exhaustive list of basic writing skills, but will give you an idea of what we are looking for in our papers. If you feel you need help with your writing, you are encouraged to seek assistance from the writing center on campus (<http://www.siue.edu/is/writing>) or use one of the many online resources they have identified to help students (<http://www.siue.edu/is/writing/resources.shtml>). If your graded written assignments fail to meet the basic writing requirements listed above (and any others found to be appropriate by your instructor), the instructor will stop the grading process and return the paper to you (see below for the specific policy for this class).

The penalty for unacceptable writing in this class is as follows: if your written assignment violates any of the above stipulations, or is otherwise inconsistent with the stated expectations for a written assignment, it will be returned to you for resubmission, and 25% of the total available points will be deducted from the final grade assigned after resubmission.

The Psychology Department's Policy on Plagiarism

Plagiarism includes presenting someone else's words without quotation marks (even if you cite the source), presenting someone else's ideas without citing that source, or presenting one's own previous work as though it were new. When paraphrasing from another source or your own work, at the very least, the student should change the wording, sentence syntax, and order of ideas presented in the paper. Additionally, you should not submit a paper, or parts of a paper, written to fulfill the requirements of one class for the requirements in another class without prior approval of the current instructor and appropriate citation. Ideally, the student will integrate ideas from multiple sources while providing critical commentary on the topic in a way that clearly identifies whether words and ideas are those of the student or are from another source. Plagiarism is one type of academic misconduct described in SIUE's Student Academic Code (<http://www.siu.edu/policies/3c2.shtml>). University policy states that "Normally a student who plagiarizes shall receive a grade of F in the course in which the act occurs. The offense shall also be reported to the Provost." (<http://www.siu.edu/policies/1i6.shtml>). The University policy discusses additional academic sanctions including suspension and expulsion from the University. To insure that you understand how to avoid plagiarism, we encourage you to review the information on plagiarism provided on the Department of Psychology web page at <http://www.siu.edu/education/psychology/plagiarism.shtml>.

In addition, it is expressly prohibited for students to work together on, review, or look at each other's homework, papers, or presentations for this class.

University Policies and Information Academic integrity/plagiarism

Students are reminded that the expectations and academic standards outlined in the Student Academic Code \(3C2\) apply to all courses, field experiences and educational experiences at the University, regardless of modality or location. Plagiarism is the use of another person's words or ideas without crediting that person. Plagiarism and cheating will not be tolerated and may lead to failure on an assignment, in the class, or dismissal from the University, per the SIUE academic dishonesty policy. Students are responsible for complying with University policies about academic honesty as stated in the University's Student Academic Conduct Code.

University guidance on artificial intelligence (AI)

Unless expressly allowed by the instructor, the use of artificial intelligence (AI) tools and applications (including ChatGPT, DALL-E, and others) to produce content for course assignments and assessments is a violation of SIUE's academic policy and is prohibited.
