

ANNUAL REPORT ON GIVING

2021-2022

FOUNDATION

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
EDWARDSVILLE

Dear Friends,

Every few years, it seems like a new personality or assessment test takes the business world by storm. I remember when everyone was fixated on the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator® to figure out which combination of letters they were; then, there was the Clifton StrengthsFinder. More recently, the Working Genius Assessment and the Enneagram have risen in popularity. We find these tools attractive because they reinforce what we like about ourselves. However, these tools often fall short of indicating how we use them to best prepare for our future.

An annual report can be viewed as a personality test for an organization. While it shows us who we have been and what we are proud of, it often does not do the important work of helping us realize what we are becoming.

“Forward Together” has become a common phrase used around campus over the past several months. The phrase speaks to the work of Chancellor James T. Minor and the University’s leadership team to help ensure SIUE is in the best position possible as we confront multiple market realities coming to higher education in the next decade. In September, we launched our new strategic plan, which includes five distinct pillars. The fifth pillar, “sustainability,” aligns most closely with the SIUE Foundation’s work. Sustainability, in this sense, means creating philanthropic opportunities that help propel the University forward. Throughout this annual report, you will see many of the ways the Foundation, in partnership with you, our donors, has supported the University’s forward trajectory over the past year. We are also moving dynamically to ensure that we have even more opportunities for you to engage philanthropically with SIUE.

I am excited to be here at SIUE at this moment in our journey as a university. I invite you to join us as we move forward together.

Best,

Seth Walker
Vice Chancellor for University Advancement

Gaining Real-World Investment Experience

The School of Business' student-led Financial Management Association provides business students with the opportunity to research real companies' earnings, pick real stocks and exchange-traded funds and invest actual money.

"The club is a wonderful learning playground for our students," said Jie Ying, PhD, assistant professor in the Department of Economics and Finance and club faculty advisor. "We invest approximately $38,000 that is a portion of the SIUE Foundation endowment. Students serve as portfolio managers and have the chance to study individual corporations and make a pitch to their peers about why they believe a particular investment is advisable."

Ying allows investment club participants freedom in creating their own micro-portfolios for consideration. He reviews their research and advises them if their asset allocation falls within goals such as long-term growth and income returns.

"This experience taught us to become proficient in analyzing a company's quarterly earnings reports and price-to-earnings ratios. We can share what we've produced and presented when interviewing with prospective employers," said May 2022 business administration graduate Luke Luchtefeld, whose club experience helped him secure his first job as an internal financial and operations analyst with Carrollton Bank.

School's Largest One-Time Individual Gift Establishes Endowed Scholarship

Chris Smith has been a member of the School of Pharmacy's advisory board for 14 years and has been an instrumental leader and advocate of the School. In December 2021, he and his wife, Debbie, announced a gift of $104,250 to the School to establish the Chris and Debbie Smith Pharmacy Endowed Scholarship.

"Debbie and I were inspired to provide this scholarship because we wanted to create more opportunities for minority students to access the premier pharmacy school education at SIUE," Chris Smith said.

This gift represents the School's largest one-time individual gift. All pharmacy students with demonstrated financial need are encouraged to apply. Priority will be given to underrepresented minority students.

At the Smith family's request, the SIUE Foundation placed $100,000 into the SIUE Endowment so that the principal of the gift will grow, and investment gains will fund pharmacy student scholarships in perpetuity. The gift's remaining $4,250 allowed the School to award its first scholarship recipient this fall.

Diverse Librarianship Career Training and Education Program Secures $249K Grant

SIUE’s Diverse Librarianship Career Training and Education Program has received $249,999 in funding as part of the Institute for Museum and Library Services’ $22.7 million investment in U.S. library initiatives. In collaboration with East St. Louis Senior High School, the Diverse Librarianship Career Training and Education Program is a two-year project that will develop a career training program to introduce 10 high school seniors to careers in librarianship. This project will also disseminate a toolkit for libraries and cultural institutions to support the recruitment, training and retention of diverse librarians.

The project is led by Library and Information Services staff and also includes staff at the following partner institutions: the University of Missouri, East St. Louis Learning Resource Center, Edwardsville Public Library, St. Louis Public Library, Missouri Historical Society and State Historical Society of Missouri.

“I am grateful to be leading a team of brilliant, innovative librarians,” shared principal investigator Tammie Busch, MLS, a assistant professor and catalog and metadata librarian. “The success of our proposal is due to our collaborative approach. We will recruit high school seniors through the East St. Louis School District 189 Career Technical Education program, which is part of a national initiative to provide skills-based, hands-on training to high school students. These students will attend school for part of their day, then leave to go work on-site at libraries and cultural institutions.”

HONORS PROGRAM

The University Honors Program offers the experience of a small, liberal arts college in the midst of a vibrant mid-sized University. Instead of traditional general education courses, honors students complete a smaller honors curriculum, composed of discussion-based courses taught by specially selected and dedicated faculty members from all areas of the University.

“We welcome students who want to challenge themselves, cultivate their curiosity and have a positive impact on the world,” said Jessica Hutchins, PhD, interim director of the University Honors Program. “We value each student’s potential for intellectual and social growth, not just their past academic performance.”

Dear Fellow SIUE Alumni and Friends,

We are delighted to share this annual report with you, as the last 12 months have been very successful for the Foundation. The solid results in net contributions speak for themselves, and new energy and a new approach portend great things to come. Last year has been one of progress and change for the SIUE Foundation, and we are very excited about where we are going. Our new chancellor, James T. Minor, PhD, and Foundation CEO, Seth Walker, have both brought new ideas, a new vision and a great deal of enthusiasm. This has afforded us an opportunity to assess what we do well as a Foundation and to make an honest assessment of where we can improve. As a result, we will enhance and improve our important work of supporting the University.

To our generous donors, thank you for your support of the Foundation. I believe that a dollar invested in the SIUE Foundation does more to advance the long-term prospects of the region than any other use. I encourage you to continue giving back. The scholarships, fellowships and skills afforded by your gifts are providing opportunities throughout the area.

Lastly, I would like to wish a happy retirement to our previous CEO, Rachel Stack. We will miss her passion and leadership but feel her commitment and good wishes for the Foundation. Her efforts have left us in a great position to continue to support the outstanding work of the University’s students, faculty and staff.

ESTABLISHING AN ENDOWMENT

An endowment fund is a gift that lasts in perpetuity and provides support continually to the University in the area(s) of interest to the donor. Endowed funds may support student scholarships, faculty, the general needs of SIUE or any School, College, unit or program within the University. Donors may fully fund an endowment with a one-time lump-sum gift, over a five-year period, or through a bequest or other deferred gift.

The minimum gift to establish an endowment is $25,000. In addition to cash, endowed funds can be established through any gift vehicle recognized by the SIUE Foundation, including gifts of securities, property, planned gifts, or pooled gifts from a group of friends or family. The SIUE Foundation works with donors to develop guidelines for how their endowed funds are to be used, ensuring donor intent is honored and SIUE policies are followed.

For information on establishing an endowed fund

Contact any College or School development officer or the SIUE Foundation at 618-650-2345.

Ways to Give

Outright Gifts

Gifts of cash, securities, real property or personal property may be unrestricted or restricted to a specific school, department or program. Gifts can also be given to support new or existing scholarships, grants, student or faculty awards, special projects or endowments.

Planned Gifts

Planned gifts come in many forms including bequests, life income gifts and other options such as trusts and life insurance.

Gifts-in-Kind

Gifts-in-kind are non-cash donations of materials or other goods that support and serve the mission of the University. Such gifts may include equipment, software, printed materials, professional services and employee expertise.

Gifts-in-kind are a valued way of supporting the University and may be tax-deductible according to IRS regulations.
