Location of research/creative activities:

Brief description of the nature of the research/creative activity?

Black Theatre Workshop presents an annual production on campus in February and next year the production will take inspiration from Ntozake Shange's play "For Colored Girls...", exploring the themes of 'sisterhood,' 'brotherhood,' and 'Black Feminism.' The show will feature scenes from Shange's work as well as self-written or devised pieces, created by the students. In preparation for the show, the members of the Black Theatre Workshop work alongside the Director to write, devise, and stage the show that will serve as the annual production. The URCA student(s) assigned to this project will have flexibility to serve in a creative capacity (assistant directing, writing, performing) and/or in an administrative capacity (dramaturgical research, organizing, marketing/promotion).

Brief description of student responsibilities?

The URCA student(s) on this project will help to gather background information on Ntozake Shange and her creative process for this work, and also will help find other works similar to Shange's play to provide additional scenes/inspiration for devised work. Also, the URCA student(s) on this project would conduct interviews with various individuals regarding their idea of sisterhood/brotherhood to serve as further research for the show and to potentially be used in the production. The URCA student(s) will also assist with marketing the production on social media, taking video/photo footage during rehearsals. This project will eventually culminate in filmed and live presentations in Black Theatre Workshop's annual production in February 2026. This URCA position will continue the work started in Fall 2025. All applicants will be considered, and students who applied in Fall 2025 are encouraged to reapply!

URCA Assistant positions are designed to provide students with research or creative activities experience. As such, there should be measurable, appropriate outcome goals. What exactly should your student(s) have learned by the end of this experience?

Yes
